Nor has i been confined to the foreign journals : native Press has sprung into existence side by side with it. It is true that the latter, so tur, has proved a tender exotic which seemingly cannot thrive without foreign nurture: but its existence is none the less a fact. Three native papers are published in this colony, and are all more or less distinguished by features peculiar to each. One of them is highly pro-Chinese, and now and then gives a quiet dig in the ribs to the foreign-minded of its readers. It is, like all journals started solely by Chinese, somewhat credulous, and fond of giving highly sensational accounts of remarkable Mail Steamship Company about twelve months births and marvellous apparitions. Its ago. readers are also frequently treated to grandfatherly advice expressed in pompous phrases often meaning nothing. To its credit, however, it must be said that the general moral other two native journals, being under foreign supervision, are not so open to criticism. > A story has reached England, which wi doubtless lead to sound inquiry on the part of our Foreign Office. It is said that a Spunish political prisoner named Jose Bonsfont escaped from the Ladrone lalands to the Pellow Islands, from whence he took ship for Singapore. Wish ing to return to Spain, he hid himself on board a Spanish atenmer, but after making himself mown to the aptain, he, together with another lugitive who had come surreptitiously on board was landed on the coast a few miles from the place of embarkation. Escaping perils from wild beasts, the Spanlard was enable by the Singapore. It is stated that on arriving at that British septlement the nutborities bunded bin over to the Spanish Donad, who subsequently desputched him to Manila. THE PELLEW ISLANDERS. From Captain O'Keefe, of the British schooner Sea Bird, which arrived here, we Sinappara Times have been able to glean some interesting particulars concerning former reeidents of Singapore. It is well known that Gall, of the little schooner Rupak, which becarrying on trade with the natives of the islands in the Pacific Ocean. Their undertaking was extremely bazardous, as the articles they carried excited the capidity of the run, so it was impossible to answer the question to is able to make so profitable a use of its wild natives, and they were compelled money is a circumstance calculated to diffuse a to arm the schooner heavily and man her feeling of wide-spread estimaction amongst with a numerous crossisting mostly of with a numerous crew, consisting mostly of men picked up here and there among the various islands they visited. About the middle of last year, Mr. Webster, when trading alone with the natives on one of the Fellow Islands, was suddenly attacked, and received a severe wound on the head. He went to Hongkong, to endeavour to indoce the British Government to inflict punishment on the offenders, but so far as we can learn the only result of his visit was an unprofitable official correspondence. The schooner Sea Bird was then chartered for the trade, and proceeded to the Pellew Islands, whence she has only just returned. Mr. Webster, went back to the islands, and, we are informed, for a time appeared to be improving, but it soon became apparent that the wound on the head had affected his brain, and eventually resulted his death on the 28th December lust. One great object of Mr. Webster's visit to tiongkong was induce a man-of-war to visit the island, and for some time the natives were held in check by the fear that one would really come and punish them, but seeing that none came bey became more insolent, and during June or July of this year, they oame off in pances in swarms and attacked the schooner Rupak. The native crew of the schooner fought bravely, and succeeded in beating back the islanders, but became so clated with their success that, armed with rifles and small arms, they surang into . their boats to pursue the piratical hords. The natives, seeing their advantage, at once surrounded the two boats, and put to death every one of the daring fellows, to the number of 28. besides possessing themselves of their rifles and other weapons. The soluoner was, however, saved, as the pirates did not renew the uttack.

ENGLISH AND CHINESE DIOTIONARY. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published

this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chineso have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous obicots in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in existso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exerciacs for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are the best principle hitherto attained. hThe typoeconomy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those Agents for the above Corporation, are vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the yast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration. Ibalinera' Vocabularly contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Modhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-For practical purposes the arrangement of

PALPITATION OF THE HEART. In perfect health, remarks Cassell's Household Guide, we are not conscious of the action of our vital organs. But we should advise everybody not to pay that attention. People should not study their vital actions as if they suspected them. They should take their health for granted, unless it is so far wrong as to be distinctly noticeable. When the heart bests sharply or too quickly, and thumps against the chest, then we say there is palpitation. Now, there are many things without any disease of the heart will disorder its actions and cause palpitation, such as strong green tea, too much anxious study, and tobicco. For the most part, these things act on the nervous system, and through this system they disorder the heart. Dyspepsia, or derangement of the stomach, bysteria, and some rhoumatic conditions of the system. will suffice occasionally to set the heart besting irregularly. In gouty people there is often both indigestion and palpitation, which quite disappear when the gout is cured. The mere fact of palpitation is, then, no proof of the existence of disease of the heart. ' A charge of diet, the abandonment of a habit, such as that of smoking, or drinking strong tes, or taking heavy suppers, will ofter suffice to cure the palpitation. If indigestion exist, or any gouty symptoms, or any rheumtio feelings, the wisest course a patient can take is to take himself to a doctor, that these may be removed.
